From: Matt Hilliard
To: Nestor Barajas
Subject: Re: vigilant system
Date: Monday, October 29, 2018 12:32:26 PM

Nestor,

No. I was trying to get a facial recognition program which is 1) County wide, 2)allowed access to other surrounding county booking/CORI information, and 3) wasn't Vigilant.

I'm pretty sure the Vigilant people left out the fact that any facial recognition program has to be CORI compliant, not just CJIS compliant. There is such a system available; however, it would require a couple hundred thousand in start up and licensing fees. It is also not Vigilant's, which last I checked was not (unless something has changed I'm unaware of) CORI compliant. The local Rand Board was working on it, but the KCSO's guy retired and I was transferred to other assignments.

Be careful of companies who try to sell you things without providing all the details. Always investigate exhaustively to ensure you protect yourself and the Department. Talk to Jeff Cecil for more about the matter, he was the last person I'm aware of to work on the project.

Lt. M. E. Hilliard.

Sent from my iPad

On Oct 29, 2018, at 10:56 AM, Nestor Barajas <nbarajas@bakersfieldpd.us> wrote:

> Hi there sir, I was told you had been trying to get Vigilant facial recognition system and I was wondering if I could help any. I recently went to a intelligence course and they were talking about the system in neighboring cities who use the system and it has great success.